

TO PROFESSOR H.G. BROWN

(A Fish Course)

Although he's from Missouri,
Of this there is no doubt--
In the field of Economics
He knows his way about.

Suppose you are a fisherman
And want to make a boat
Professor Brown will show you how,
If you'll read what he wrote,

You'll have to lay by capital,
To consummate your wish,
Which must come out of wages,
And both consist of FISH.

And while these fish were caught at sea,
You still must understand,
They're also Economic Rent,
As they were part of Land.

And thus while in the movies
"A kiss is just a kiss,"
Professor Brown has taught us,
A FISH AINT JUST A FISH."

And so we hasten on to say
Regardless of all fishes,
He's given us a splendid course,
And we give him BEST WISHES.
