

TWO VIEWS OF PHILOSOPHY

When Herbert Spencer looked around
And saw much want and woe,
He said, "It's my philosophy
All this in time must go.

"There's little use to rant and rave
'Gainst wrong that's now entrenched,
We cannot reach the absolute
By any sudden wrench.

"But those of us above the slime,
Who see the way ahead,
Predict your wrongs will righted be
Long after you are dead."

-----
"To be of worth," cried Henry George,
"We need to help men now;
To use philosophy for this,
I herewith make a vow."
