

JOHN S. CODMAN

John S. Codman

John Sturgis Codman, who passed on in Boston Sept. 8, was cofounder of the Boston extension of the Henry George School of Social Science, and a leader in the field of economics.

A native of Boston, he was graduated from Noble's School in 1886, Harvard College in 1890, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1893.

Mr. Codman was decorated by the Belgium Government for his work as manager of the Belgian Relief Fund in Boston during World War I and was one of the original members of the American Civil Liberties Union in 1920. For several years he served as an administrator of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society.

BOSTON GLOBE
SEPT 9
1959
R 5, 1959

Deaths and

John Codman

Co-Founder in Boston
Of Henry George School

John Sturgis Codman, 91, of 161 Chestnut st., Beacon Hill, co-founder of the Boston extension of the Henry George School of Social Science, and well-known in the field of economics, died yesterday at his home.

Born in Boston, he was a graduate of Noble's School in 1886, Harvard College, class of 1890, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1893.

During his early business years he was active in illuminating engineering and published many scientific articles on it. He was treasurer of the Fabreka Products Co. of Boston from 1919 until 1953.

From 1915 to 1918, he was manager of the Belgian Relief Fund in Boston and was decorated by the Belgian government.

He was author of many articles on economics.

He was one of the original members of the American Civil Liberties Union in 1920 and served on the national committee for a number of years. He also served for several years as treasurer and vice-president of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society.

He was a member of the Tavern Club.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin M. Ellis, and a sister, Mrs. Redington Fiske, both of Boston.

John Codman Dies, Retired Economist, 91

John Sturgis Codman, 91, retired manufacturer and economist, died yesterday at his home, 161 Chestnut St., Beacon Hill.

He was active for many years in the fields of civil rights and anti-vivisection.

HARVARD, MIT GRADUATE

Mr. Codman was born in Boston and attended Noble's School. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1890 and from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1893.

He was treasurer of the Fabreka Products Co., Boston, from 1919 until his resignation in 1953. He had been active in the lighting illuminating engineering and published numerous scientific articles.

Mr. Codman also wrote extensively on economics and in 1920 was co-founder of the Boston extension of the Henry George School of Social Science, New York. He taught in the Boston School for many years.

He was an original member of the American Civil Liberties Union, a former member of the group's national committee and treasurer of the Civil Liberties Committee of Massachusetts.

He also had served as vice president and treasurer of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society.

During World War I Mr. Codman was manager of the Belgian Relief Fund in Boston and his work for that cause earned him a decoration from the Belgian government.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin M. Ellis, and a sister, Mrs. Redington Fiske, both of Boston.